The 1995 Hallmark staff is pleased to dedicate this yearbook to two outstanding teachers whose teachings and caring personalities have made them truly deserving recipients of this distinction.

Joe and Karen Quakenbush—the dynamic duo of the RHSM faculty, have always extended their time, energy, and care, to include all of RHSM's students. They have touched every single RHSM member with their unconditional support and strength.

Joe Quakenbush has taught science and mathematics at RHSM for the past two years. Karen Quakenbush has taught history for the past four years at RHSM, and also taught Spanish earlier in her career. Both are very active climbers and enjoy the great outdoors.

Karen and Joe Quakenbush's sincere dedication as well as their undying devotion to the RHSM community have made them favorites of many. Thank you!

THE FINAL RETREAT

The senior class retreat took place on September 14 at Camp Pinecliff near Coalville, Utah. After a long bus ride, the event began. Immediately footballs and frisbees were flying through the air to the tunes of guitars and drums. Moments later, to the seniors' horror, it was discovered that there were no drinks, and the water out of the faucets tasted really bad. An hour and a half later the class sponsors returned with a drink aisle's amount of refreshments. As the night wore on, more people gathered around the campfire to fend off the cold. After the class sponsors rounded us up in our mono-sex cabins and left for dreamland, people started sneaking around, making the cabins co-ed. After hours of laughing we crashed at dawn. The next day nothing was planned so the seniors did as they pleased; they hiked, played sports, slept, ate, swam, and attended a meeting. "It was a very relaxing, nice time," commented Mike Koetter. The other senior sponsors were: Keller Higbee, Tara Dowling, Maritza Ascencios, Brigitte Kirk, and Carl (Doc) Sturges.

This year the junior class traveled up Ogden Canyon for their class retreat. After a two-hour bus ride, a stop to push one of the buses, and a lot of noise and laughing, we reached our destination. First, everyone was sent with sleeping bags in hand to their assigned cabins. For some, it was a short walk and for others, a long trek up a mountain with no light. Then there was of course some free time before the class met for "bonding".

That night we enjoyed sitting around the camp fire eating s'mores, or sitting around in the kitchen eating whatever we could get our hands on.

The next day we all enjoyed playing football, basketball, talking to one another, eating and hanging out. No one will forget the sight of Phill flying down the long cement runway. Or the fast rolling trips of people in the big tire, or the dangers of the swing on the big tree.

Overall, the retreat was a great success!

Sophomores Conquer Tuttle's Ropes Course

This year's sophomore retreat took place at scenic Camp Tuttle. Campers spent the first evening around the campfire, toasting marshmallows and telling stories. The next morning everyone woke up bright and early to the sweet song of the native birds. After breakfast, the sophomores played ping-pong, badmitten, and tether ball. Next everyone split into groups and began the ropes course (a demanding series of rope-oriented obstacles and challenges) for which Tuttle is famous. The ropes course allowed students to become better acquainted with each other and test their limits, both physical and mental. After the enjoyable weekend of frolicking in the woods, everyone came home glowing with pride and accomplishment.

Freshmen Class Biology Retreat

All ninth grade students arrived at the Upper School campus on Tuesday, September 12 at 7:00 a.m. We loaded the buses and headed for Kanab, Utah. We danced in the aisles of the bus while "Gangsta's Paradise" blasted in the background and some of us slept. Thanks to Brian Pyper, we were able to enjoy "Far From Home" at least seven times. We camped at the Pink Coral Sand Dunes. During the days we hung out at Angel Canyon measuring stream flow rate, creating unique cultures, and carving many petroglyphs with Rockwell (Rocky) Hopp. After each day's study we returned to camp and headed for the sand dunes to relax and enjoy ourselves.

After working all day we found it hard to stay up past 10:00 p.m. Many thanks to Karen Quackenbush and the entire ninth grade team for making this possible. It was a great way to learn desert adaptation first hand, get to know our new teachers, and hang out with friends. When asked to reflect on the four-day adventure, class vice president Andy Vinton commented, "I'm speechless." He speaks for the entire class!

Adopt-a-Block Community Project

Feeling good about doing community service.

The fourth annual RHSM Adopt-a-Block was held on the morning of September 23. About 50 students as well as teachers took time out of their Saturday in order to come together and clean up the RHSM neighborhood.

The group split up and joined forces with the neighborhood residents. Some groups cleaned windows, others back yards, and some did other jobs. The end result after about two hours of working—a cleaner neighborhood and happier residents. By offering our services we bonded as a school and as a community. Afterwards, the students and residents were invited to lunch at the school. Adopt-a-Block is a good way to get to know your fellow students, and to show how much you care about the local community.

Lobsterfest

The fourth annual Lobsterfest went smoothly. The lobsters arrived promptly and were picked up by their predestined owners. Lobsterfest was once again a highly succesful fundraiser for the school. The money which was raised went to upper school classes as well as community services around the city. The senior class followed tradition and out sold all other classes. Many thanks to all who helped to organize the fundraiser, especially Dave Hall, activities dean and organizer.

Upper School Dances

The back-to-school stomp was a royal polka fest.

Would you like to dance with death?

Put your right foot in and you shake it all about.

The dances this year had many highlights. The back-to-school stomp had a large turnout, probably to see Rhett Panos. The halloween dance had Amanda Ford as a D.J. and a well-decorated lower school cafeteria. Next came the Christmas dance, which has been traditionally girls' choice. Over eighty couples showed up to hear the band 911 (with Jeff Gadette) play. The dances were much improved this year and the larger turnouts proved that. A big thanks goes out to all the student council members and teachers who made these dances possible.

Candle and Carol

This year the traditional Candle and Carol service was another success. It included readings by students, songs performed by the choir, and memorable speeches by faculty and administration members. Although there was no snow on the ground (remember that a snowstorm delayed the opening of the 1994 event) and it did not feel quite like the holiday season, the spirit of Christmas lived on within the historic walls of St. Marks Cathedral.

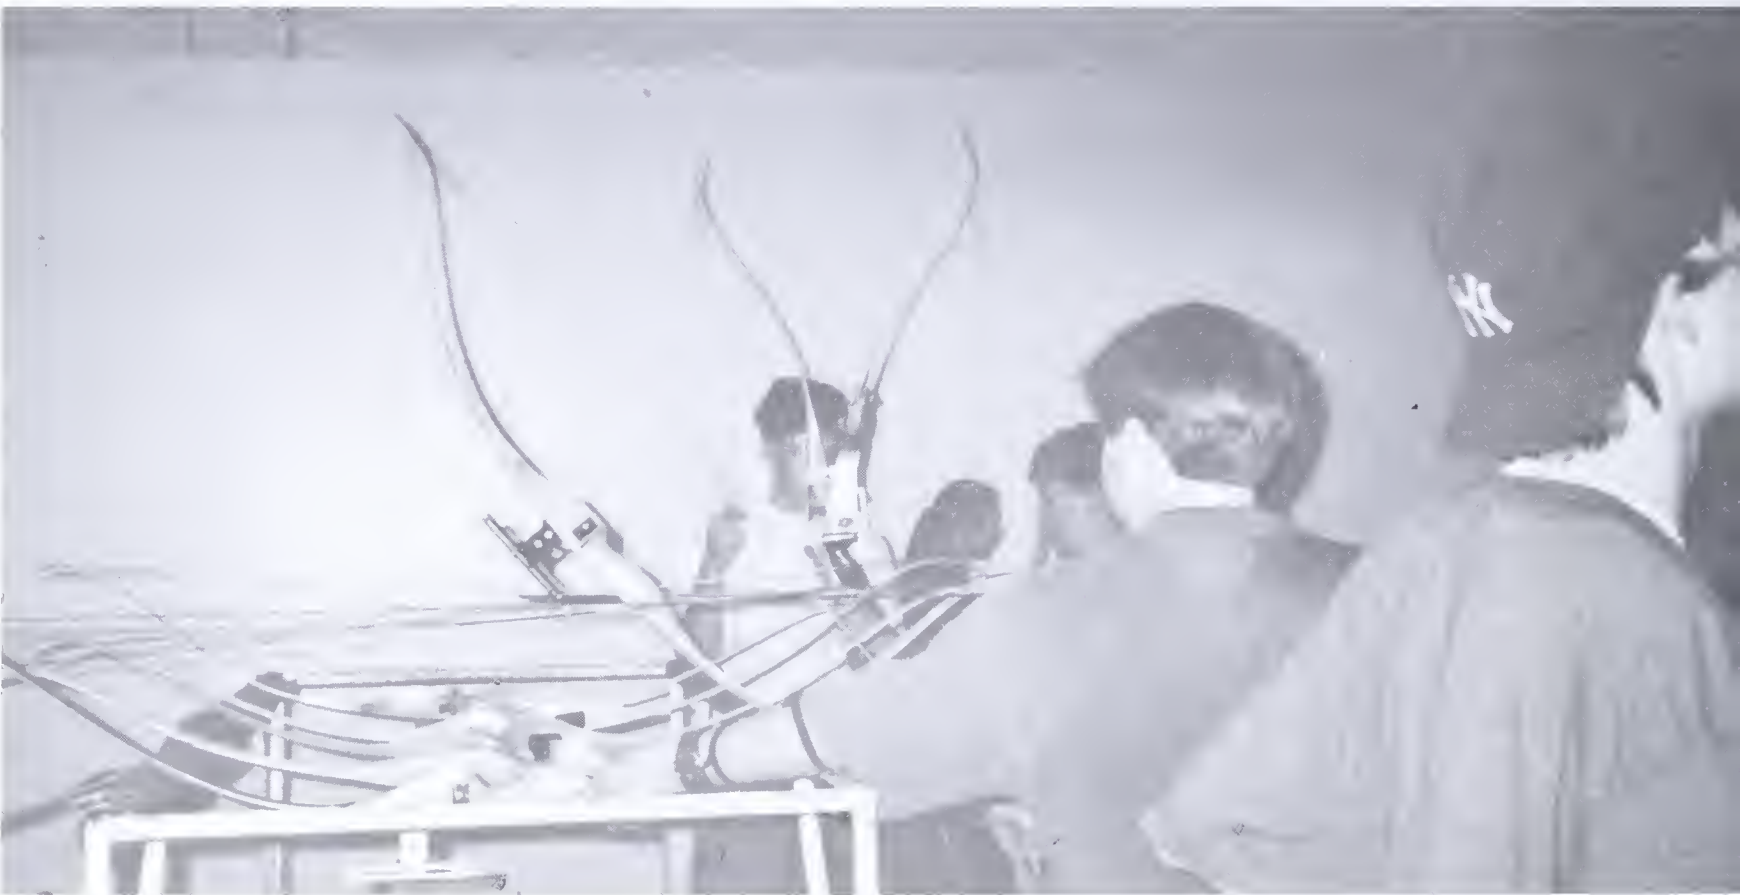

The upper school's service was Tuesday evening; the middle school's Friday afternoon. The traditional mixture of choral performing, singing of hymns, and inspirational seasonal remarks interspersed with instrumental solos proved to be delightfully received by both audiences on both days. This is certainly one of Rowland Hall-St. Mark's finer traditions.

Winter Sports

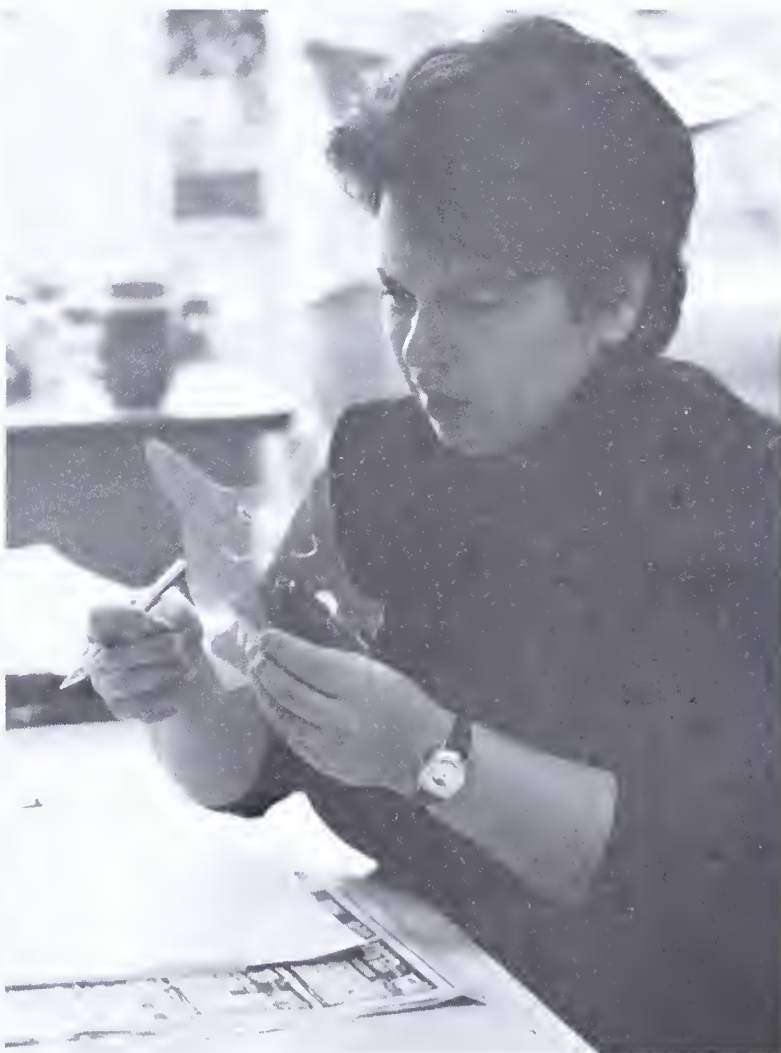

The winter of 1995–1996 will be long-remembered. After completely dry fall season that wiped out ski resorts' Thanksgiving and Christmas holiday bookings for lack of snow, January and February turned ugly. Several typical BIG Utah storms pummeled the mountains and valleys of northern Utah. First period classes at RHSM were notable for straggling students and teachers. School was cancelled once. And while winter sports was cancelled twice, a delighted student body cheered the extension of the program for two weeks in March. Spring skiing was, as usual, great. This year there was one bus devoted entirely to snowboarders. Rock climbing drew record numbers. Ice skating, deck hockey, archery, bowling, tennis, and Tai Chi were other popular options.

Art Start

Monoprints, jewelry, jazz dance, hip hop, acting, video, stage combat, improv comedy, fly tying, and book making. These were just a few of the numerous, fun-filled Art Start activities in which RHSM students were involved in 1996. Once again students and faculty took part in an extensive, two-day study with artists from the Salt Lake City community.

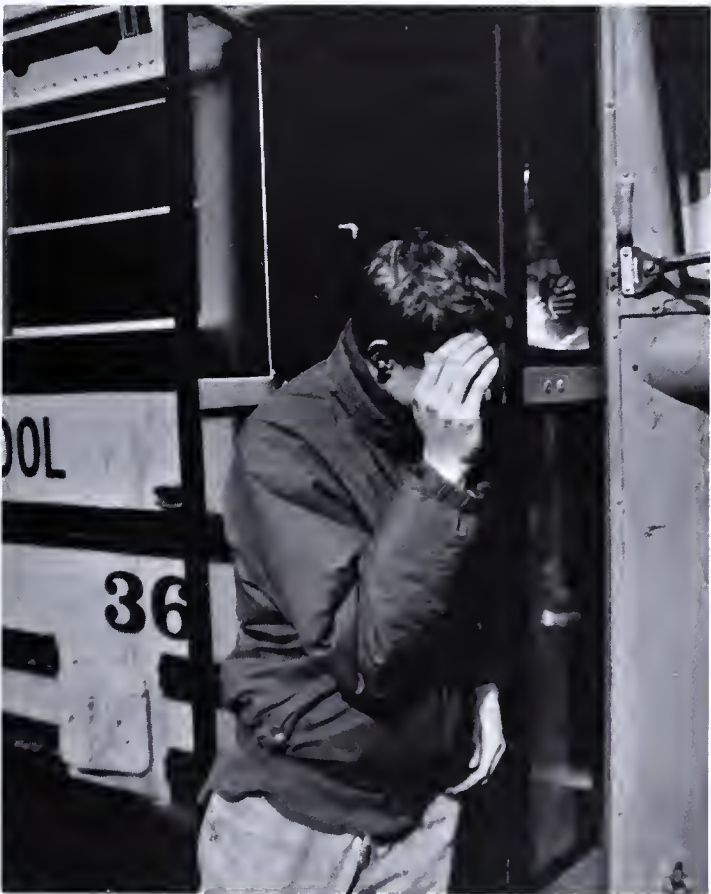

Many students look forward to Art Start with excitement and anticipation, not only because of the break in the normal class schedule, but also for the chance to be involved in new and unusual activities, ones that are totally foreign to their usual pursuits and that challenge them to learn something quickly and well.

Tony Larimer, RHSM's beloved English teacher emeritus, once again returned not only to run the acting class but to host the stage proceedings, which were highlighted by Bryan Pyper's trombone solo. Micheal Kranes, who taught American history briefly at RHSM this year, conducted the improv comedy class. Well done, everyone!

Clubs

German Club

The 1995-1996 German club, in cooperation with the National Honor Society, was involved in many educational, cultural, and community events throughout the year. In addition to such annual events as Oktoberfest and a program to assist Navajo elders, this year's German club has fulfilled its mission in providing an exciting educational environment in which students—and the entire RHSM community—find the support and resources to fully comprehend and experience the richness of German culture.

French Club

This year's French club was a great success. The goal was a trip to Quebec which the members would be taking in the summer. The club was involved in "Sub for Santa" and other various community service projects. One of the club's largest fundraisers was a dance held at the Vortex, a renowned local Salt Lake City night club. Advisor Doug Wortham led the night's festivities by dusting off his old duds and dee-jaying to the theme of disco: "It's time to paahty!!" The dance was a huge success! Over two-hundred wild teenagers from all different high schools came, and many were dressed to kill in disco attire. The french club was led by Doug Wortham, President Hilary Amoss, Vice Preseident Tacy Conard, Secretary Emily Barrett, treasurer Kristin Hilger, and Publicity Director Ellie Culp. Vive le French Club!!

Latin Club

"... Not dead, just resting." The forty-two members of the RHSM Junior Classical League were led this year by the triumvirate of J.L. Berg, Chris Maack, and Mike Monroe; pro-consuls Tony Ashton and Cody Skarning; Quaestor Shanti Sheppard; Scribe Bill Neville (who replaced Ted Manka); and Director Socialis Emily Sloan-Pace. The faculty sponsor was Sue Olsen. The Utah State Chapter was awarded first place in membership last year.

Students sponsored a public lecture by Professor Jim Svendsen in September. He gave a lively presentation on the Utah Greek Theater Festival's Bacchae. Students also cooperated with the National Honor Society in providing gifts for the Head Start Christmas party and worked at a soup kitchen in the spring.

After a year of meetings and social activities the students worked on promoting the Latin Fair, held in Provo, where they have never been defeated in the Latin Bowl!

HAM Radio Club

Brian Pyper began the amateur radio club this year because of his personal interest in it and because he has had so much fun with his ham radio licence since he got it.

Two times a month, the club sponsored skills testing leading to the technician licence, the entry-level licence that does not include Morse code. As a person moves along, he or she can then practice morse code for another licence, and can also practice emergency communications.

The greatest and most important aspect of amateur radio is when it is used in an emergency situation when all other lines of communication are severed. Amateur radios are programmed with relief stations to communicate and report injuries, deaths, or to request assistance.

The Amateur Radio Club members included Michael Hughs, who already has his general licence; Michael will be helping to teach classes in morse code. Mohammed Hall and Andy Hatch, who taught antenna construction.

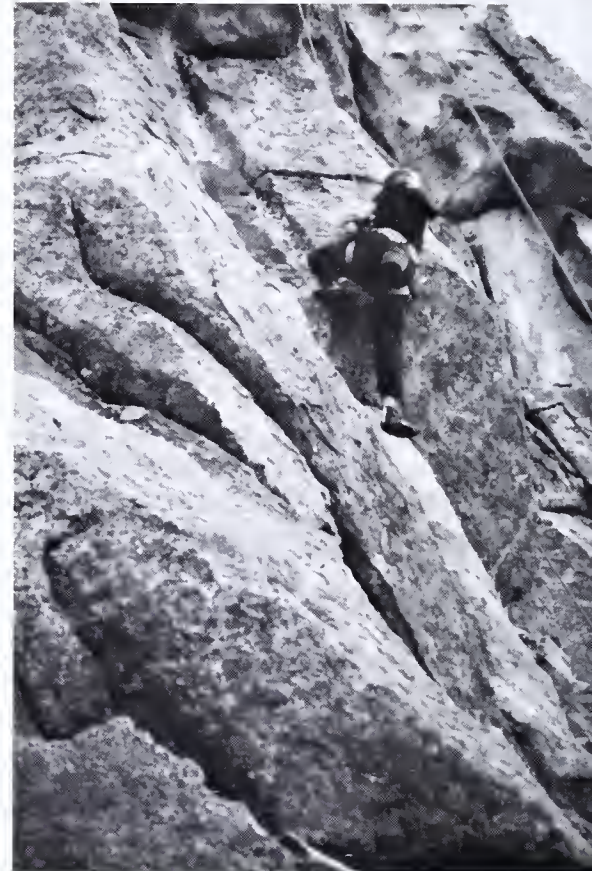

The school has agreed that if the club maintains active participants it will set up a station at the school. This station will make it possible for members to communicate as far north as Idaho Falls, as far south as St. George, as far east as Vernal, and as far west as Wendover.

Rock Climbing Club

This year the rock climbing club was started at RHSM. The first major activity of the club was a trip over UEA weekend to the City of Rocks in southwestern Idaho. Supervisors were Joe and Karen Quackenbush, Peter Hayes, Rocky Hopp, Brian Pyper, and Jenny Beck. In just three days of climbing, most students scaled over one thousand vertical feet. On the first day the group concentrated on short but technical routes at Practice Rock. Then on the second day, they climbed the 120-foot cliff called Elephant Rock. The overwhelming response was that it was a lot of fun and a huge success. Future rock climbing club activities include summer programs and regular interim trips.

National Honor Society

The 1995–1996 National Honor Society executed numerous successful community service activities, including a clothing drive and a canned food drive. It held a Christmas party in the RHSM cafeteria for a local preschool. The NHS also assisted in the preparations and hosting of ArtStart.

Under the guidance and care of Karen Quackenbush and the leadership of Del Anderson (president), Josie Mallinckrodt (vice president), and Mark Langheinrich (secretary), NHS performed some amazing feats to help both the RHSM community and the Salt Lake City community at large. All members of the organization maintain high academic standards and have pursued community service prior to being selected for membership.

Although we are small in number,
By adopting a canyon
We've tried to save lumber.
We drove to the food bank
To smoosh salmon into cans
And organize soup kitchens
To fill empty hands.
We boxed gifts for Navajos
And sent them with pride.

We pick up our stride,

Debate

The Rowland Hall debate team was very successful once again this year. The team finished in the top five of all competing teams in Utah. The team had one "ugly experience," said coach Frank Langheinrich. This revolved around a tournament in Price, Utah, where the tournament ended four hours late at 2:00 a.m. on a Sunday morning. Overall the season ran smoothly. Traditional trips to Stanford and Berkeley, as well as RHSM's hosting of the region tournament resulted in valued depth and experience for the team. Strong showings in regions and state, and the advancement of Bob Gill to national levels, proved that this is a team of future pride to the school.

Newspaper

"This story is too big for us—maybe even too big for the Times!"

"Now, listen, Yasamin. I really think you need help with this story. What do you say we go up to my locker and talk it over?"

The 1995–96 Rowland Hall-St. Mark's Gazette carried on in the fine tradition of previous years' newspapers, under the fine leadership of Editor Beth Nuzzo and Layout Editor Tom Lombardi. "We feel the news of the school and its community is of vital importance to all students, faculty, and administrators," said advisor Richard Howe. "There's no telling when the next big story might break." Staff included Yasamin Hosseini, Peter Koelsch, Andrew Ralph, Doug Reid, Eliza Congdon, Mike Nuzzo, Issa Chan, Nate Vinton, Mark Langheinrich, and Julia Alexander.

Alex Henricks composes his first symphony.

Greg Burst says SMILE!

Mr. Howe, a head above the rest.

Led by advisor Rich Howe and editors Yulee Choe, Jenny Wood, and Emily Barrett, the yearbook staff worked hard to make this year's yearbook live up to high expectations. After spending eons (hours) going through hundreds (three or four) rolls of film the yearbook staff narrowed the picture field down to the few which represent the happenings at Rowland Hall over the 1995-96 school year. Each team of two or three staffers had to lay out the pictures and write a copy (summary) of what the specific event or activity they were covering was about. The next step was creating the layout on computer, printing proofs on the laser printer, and correcting and revising the resulting pages. Copies of the desktop publishing files were then sent to the yearbook publishing company, which processed the pages and sent the proofs to the school for a final check. "From that point on, it's a waiting game," surmised Howe, "a game not for the weak of heart or mind." While computers have changed the way yearbooks are produced, the hard work and dedication needed to create one—and make it good—haven't diminished a bit. The yearbook staff would also like to thank Rich Howe for the use of his driveway in the burning of the school's initials for the cover picture.

Jenny Wood surfs the 'net.

Mr. Macner takes shows his disappointment with the yearbook by pounding on George.

Student Council

Mr. Henry on the brink of a nervous breakdown.

Hey Chris! The camera is in front of you.

The master plan is drawn up.

Tacy Conard: entertained and hating it.

Carrie Littlefield: bored and loving it.

The main goals of student council this year were to: make morning meetings and dances better than they have been in the past, and also to encourage the return of fear of upper classmen. Attempting to bring respect back to the seniors (and upper classmen in general) through freshman hazing, student council members brought much controversy onto themselves. However, student council worked through this and still managed to make morning meetings entertaining. Through student council's hard work the dances were improved and their reputation of being "lame" was lost. The success was evident from the overall better reviews and larger turnouts. Mr Henry, the advisor to student council, thought that this year's student council "worked well together and [was] very organized." He also felt that the student representatives were "more independent, which is a good thing."

Mosaic

Mosaic was such a success last year that this year two classes of creative writing were offered. Yearly issues of the acclaimed literary magazine have continued to win the very highest national honors from the National Scholastic Press Association, the National Council of Teachers of English, and the Columbia Scholastic Press Association. Advisors Shelby Raebeck and Richard Howe proudly led the staff which included Del Anderson, Allison Axland, Maggie Behle, Andrew Dalglish, Amanda Ford, Kerstin Forsythe, Aliette Frank, Elizabeth Gesas, Mohammed Hall, Erin Hofmann, Yasamin Hosseini, Julia Jepperson, Marissa Meli, Ray Milea, Emily Norman, Travis Otten, Alexis Paulos, Calli Payne, Sloane Rampton, Anami Sheppard, Ryan Shuput, Lisa Smith, Anna Snipes, Evan Tendick, and Andrea Williams. The staff has the very difficult task of keeping up the long-standing tradition of excellence.

Musical

Seductive "ness"

Pimpin....oops, Pippin. Colin S.

Don't blow your horn too loud!

This year's theater department produced the musical Pippin, which is set in the "not-so-holy Roman empire" in 780 A.D. Pippin is the first-born son of Charlemagne, talented and handsome, obsessed with the need to be completely fulfilled. And so it goes . . .

The production took place November 10-12, and the play was so hot that the stage went up in flames. There was a large turnout all three nights with scorching results. Here are some quotes about it:

"Pippen was so cool!" Lisa

"The musical rocked my world,"

"It was weird."

"It was incredible."

"The band was . . . just . . . wow!"

"The dancers were hot stuff."

The cast included Jared Baker as Pippin, Mike Monroe as Charlemagne, Willy Ray as Lewis, and Betsey Tohinaka as Fastrada. Others in the cast were Sam Littlefield, Kyle Walton, Nicole Larson, Kerstin Forsythe, Tracy Manaster, Barbara North, Ashley Smith, Vanessa Shuput, Christina Lau, Emily Sloan-Pace, Philip Sturges, and Sarah Lappe.

The RHSM dance company and band each contributed mightily to the musical. Pippin was produced and directed by Michelle Goeglein, choreographed by Joan Kingston, and vocalized by Maria Engen. Brian Pyper was the instrumental director. Paula Carlson was the accompanist. George Ford created the computer-generated music, and was assisted by Amanda Ford.

Last, but not least, the audience participated as a vital element in the musical, and contributed to its success. Bravo!

Dance Company

The 1995-1996 Rowland Hall-St. Mark's dance company continued in the excellent tradition of years past, under the direction of Joan Kingston. The company performed in the Winter Concert at Brighton High School and was involved in many fine arts concerts during the year. In addition, the company studied with several guest choreographers, appeared during morning school assemblies, participated in human rights month activities, and graced the north end of the school with spontaneous outbursts of fun and enthusiasm. Bravo!

Band

The Rowland Hall-St. Mark's 1995-1996 upper school band.

Willy had a special feel for the drums . . .

Those reeds make such sweet music.

Brian Pyper directed the Rowland Hall-St. Mark's 1995-1996 band. There is no doubt that his leadership and "band aid" resulted in a greatly improved and exciting year. Highlights included playing in the musical and accompanying several plays and performances at the school. There was even the addition of computerized music at the school musical, which was scored by Mr. Pyper. Since he plays and arranges for the state's Army Band, Mr. Pyper is well-known to the local authorities and can be seen performing at all manner of society events around town. He is a natural talent, and as a teacher of music brings the best out in all his students. As the RHSM band grows in numbers and in quality, Mr. Pyper will certainly be at the center of it all.

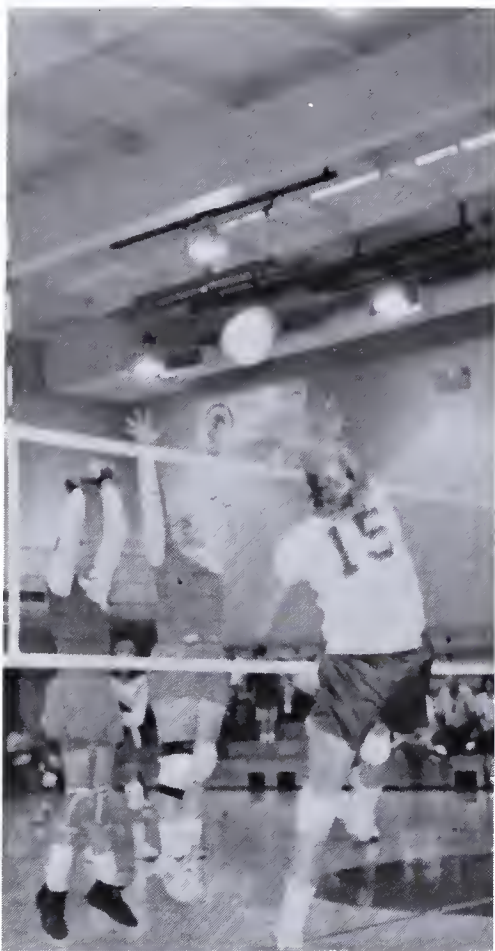

Chorus

The Rowland Hall-St. Mark's Chorus, under the direction of Maria Engen, rehearsed and rehearsed all year to bring the joyous sound of vocal music to the school community. Besides many concerts and performances, the chorus played a large part in the Candle and Carol activities in December. Bravo!

Rowland Hall-St. Mark's Womens Junior Varsity team.

Rowland Hall-St. Mark's Freshman-Sophomore team.

This year the girls' volleyball team shocked region 12 by showing an outstanding performance throughout the season. Nobody expected the winged lions to soar so high when they moved from 1-A to 2-A, but they proved the critics wrong by finishing third in the regular season with a record of 8-5. The varsity team consisted of Katrina Easton, Carrie Littlefield, Alisa Methner, Kelly Tuohig, Megan Williams, Kristin Hilger, Meghan Tuohig, Jenna Gelegotis, Jenny Rasmussen and Kacie Tachiki. The Junior Varsity and Freshman-Sophomore teams had a wonderful season as well. The J.V team consisted of Tia Masters, Jenna Gelegotis, Jill Snyder, Liz Gesas, Jenny Rasmussen, Kacie Tachiki, Sara Watchorn, and Parinaz Mohebbizadeh. The Freshman-Sophomore team included Jamie Gadette, Tonee Swilor, Sara Watchorn, Lynzy Burke, Kelly Knudsen, Meghan Barker, Liz Gesas, and Parinaz Mohebbizadeh. The season would not have been such a huge success without coaches Kendra Tomsic and Kathy Howa.

Alex Meade, Austin Riter and James Alred break away from the pack, I wonder if they know they're going the wrong way?

The 1995–96 cross country team, under a new regime, was very successful. Jane Barrett and John Schiefer were the coaching inspirations who “ran” the team. By October the team was regularly running 30 miles a week. After competing in two meets which averaged over 30 schools each, the team went to Morgan for its first 2A meet. RHSM showed that it could successfully compete with the larger 2A schools by placing second. The team returned to Morgan three weeks later for regions, where the men surprised everyone as they qualified for state by finishing third. Ellie Culp and Sloane Reed also qualified for state. The hard work paid off with a strong showing in the brutal State 3.0 mile race at Sugarhouse Park. Ellie Culp placed second and the men’s team (Alex Henricks, Greg Burst, Shanti Sheppard, Nate Vinton, Alex Meade, James Allred, Austin Riter) finished seventh.

Women's Tennis

This year the girl's tennis team had another successful season, despite their second place finish behind the Grantsville Cowboys for the third straight year. The team ended with a regular season record of 3-1, and second place finishes at both the region and state tournaments. Freshman Jessie Wolfe took first in region and state, completing an undefeated season at #3 singles. Kristina Reeder (senior) at #2 singles, Kendall Sumner (senior) and Hilary Amoss (senior) at #1 doubles and Katie Bernhisel (freshman) and Michelle Brooks (sophomore) at #2 doubles all finished second in the region and state tournaments. Freshman Anna Palmer also made a great appearance at #1 singles. The team's head coach Rich Francey completed his fourth year coaching the girls, as did assistant coach Joannie Reeder. Other players included seniors Yulee Choe, Yasamin Hosseini, and Tracy Gibbons; juniors Jennifer Ralph, and freshman Lindsey Beer.

Women's Soccer

The game face.

"What are you mumbling Billy?"

"Oh, my!"

This was Rowland Hall's first soccer season playing in Triple A. The girls were up against some really hard teams but everyone played great. Unfortunately they did not make it to the state tournament, but it was a great season. The season record was 3-7. The team consisted of Jaeger Agraz, Jenny Arnow, Hillary Amoss, Emily Barrett, Jessica Barry, Susannah Bone, Marie Boyd, Whitney Brinton, Sierra Burton, Liz Connelly-injured, Molly Doilney, Heather Edwards, Anna Evershed, Alex Folias, Aliette Franks, Sadie Hoagland, Erin Hoffman, Erin Holmes, Sarah Jones-injured, Alison Jordan, Katie Larcher, Alexandra Lee, Gina Martinez, Amanda Miller, Kaebah Orem, Sloane Rampton, Emily Roy, Reshma Shetty, katie Shigeoka, Caitlin Stevens, Lauren Stevens-injured, Eryn Swanson, Kelly Wells, Sadie Weyher, Lauren Whatley, and Andrea Williams. The coaches were Billy McNicol and Chris Agnello.

Women's Basketball

This years womens basketball team worked hard to make an outstanding entrance into the 2-A region. The Varsity team consisted of seniors Hilary Amoss, Alexandra Folias, Carrie Littlefield and Megan Williams, sophmores Molly Doilney, Heather Edwards, Jenna Gelegotis and Reshma Shetty, freshmen Kaebah Orme, Jenny Rasmussen, Tonee Swilor and Kacie Tachiki. The Varsity had a good season and played their hardest in the Region Tournament. The Junior Varsity team was made up of Sierra Burton, Molly Doilney, Heather Edwards, Jenna Gelegotis, Sarah Hames, Kaebah Orme, Reshma Shetty, Kacie Tachiki and Jessie Wolfe. Freshmen/sophomore team consisted of Jaegar Agraz, Katie Bernhisel, Jamie Gadette, Katie Larcher, Gina Martinez, Amanda Miller, Tonee Swilor and Abby Thomas. Thanks to the head coach Lori Dall, assistant and Junior Varsity coach Theresa Totaricca, and freshman/sophomore coaches Kathy Howa and Kendra Thomsic.

Men's Basketball

The leap from 1A to 2A proved to be a challenge for the '95-'96 mens basketball team. The team ended their season with a 7-11 record, 1-11 in Region 12 and 6-0 in non-region games.

The varsity team roster included Mohammad Hall, Michael billings, Cody Skarning, Mark Long, Mark Langheinrich, Luke Flockerzi, Adam Neilson, David Billings, Scott Driggs, Jeff Miller, Adam Senekjian, and Mike Stewart. The junior varsity included Justin Klien-Clark, David Billings, Adam Nielson, Scott Driggs, Travis Otten, Will Springmeyer, David Dolan, James Balsterholt, Adam Senekjian, Andrew Dalgeliesh, Rex Cornwell and Jeff Miller. The freshman team included Chip Jarman, Pat Sullivan, Sean McKay, Tommy Sharp, Rusty Michalak, Jesse Crandall, Alex Petersen, Bob kendrick, Mike Nuzzo, and James Allred. Our guys' team, the Burst Brothers

In only its third year of existence, Rowland Hall Swimming has come a long way. Swimming at the 3-A state level, RHSM has grown very competitive. This year's girls' team finished third at state and had an undefeated dual meet season, beating Highland, Olympus, East, and Tooele. The most intriguing part of the team is the fact that ours is the smallest team competing.

Heading up this group of swimmers is third-year standout and team captain Kristina Reeder. The most improved returning swimmer is Ashley Page, who went to state in both freestyle events. The strength and reason for the dramatic improvement is the freshman class: Sara Watchorn, Calli Payne, Abby Thomas, and Kelly Wells.

Allison McIntosh, Kerstin Forsythe, Lauren Stevens, and Meghan Barker all added depth and points to the state championship. Returning as the head coach for a third year was Peter Daland.

Rowmark

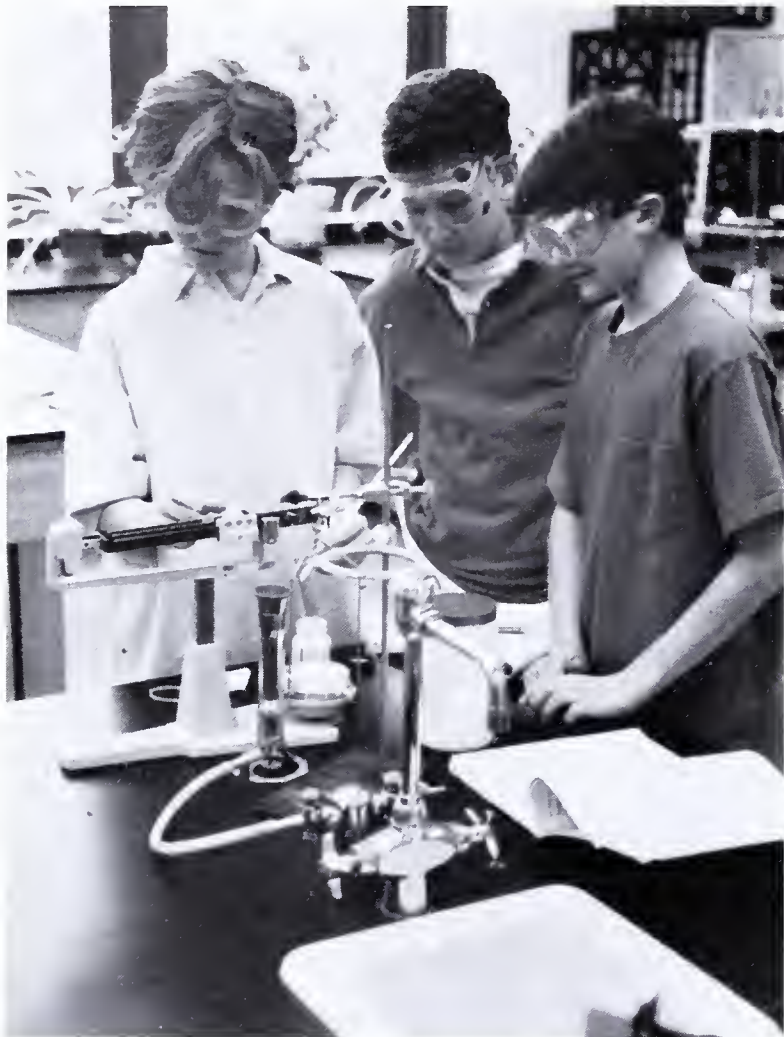

The hours spent at Fairmont Park windsprinting; the hard-core strength and conditioning workouts at the weight room; the intense on-snow drills and gate training; and the Mt. Hood and Keystone pre-season camps all paid off for the Rowmark 1995-1996 season. The Rowmark team consisted of seniors Nanako Bannai (team co-captain), Salt Lake City; Vickie Bates, Spokane; John Miller (team co-captain), Salt Lake City; Peter Shaffer, Aspen; Eric Turney, Big Bear Lake; juniors Jesse Keene, Deadwood; Josh Kellerman, Nevada City; Heather Polhemus, Oak Ridge; Michelle Parry, Aspen; Carrie Thompson, Park City; sophomores Christina Babilis, Ogden; Jessica Lyle, Park City; Whitney Olch - Park City; Charlie Oys, Basalt; freshman Issa Chan, Boone; post-graduate students Oliver Fritsch, Olympic Valley; Amber Guaraglia, Olympic Valley; and coaches Olle Larsson, John Ethen, Thom Morton, and Sam Varner.

Middle school soccer had another outstanding year under the coaching leadership of Billy McNichol. The growth of middle school enrollment resulted in large numbers of squad members. The ever-increasing popularity of the sport resulted in an increased level of competition, which sharpened RHSM's skills to an ever-finer degree.

Kokopelli Moon

*Megan Cassity,
Class of 1996*

The large blue moon rises from behind the clouds casting long shadows across the silky sand

The music of ancestral flutes plays and ricochets between the walls of ancient sandstone glowing purple in the dusk

Regal gods preside from their walls of rock
to guard over the ruins of their long dead generations the wind howls around their corroded forms

And mourns their passing in hollow pots painted black and white

The sand blows against these figures carved in stone
wearing away their images

Slowly, very slowly
as Kokopelli plays his flute
in the rising blue moon over the desert Rain will be the only one to weep for these ruins trapped in stone

Wow! I can't believe it's over. The past three years at RHSM have been the best years of my life. Who would have thought an east coast girl like me could wind up loving it in Utah? It only proves that anything is possible. I can't thank everyone at RHSM enough for helping me find my way. I'll miss you all but especially Doc, who made sure I survived a class of senior guys in tenth grade; and Joe, for always making me laugh. I have to thank my family for putting up with me, too. Sometimes I wonder how we all survived. Mom-Thanks for always listening to me. Dad-Thanks for always challenging me to find the answers. Mike-Talk on the phone all night but don't break too many hearts. Cortney-Never stop dreaming or having conversations with your dolls. I love you all. High school definitely wouldn't have been any fun without my friends. Tacela- I'll always answer my phone for you so don't forget to call me when you're famous. (p.s. "Grow Up" so stop chasing random mini-vans.) Marissa- Thanks for the laughs and for entertaining me with the slurping sounds during movies. Tony and Chris-Take over the school next year, blast your stereos, and work on your New York accents or I'll have to get my beat-stick and rough you up. To "The Group"- Thanks for the Ace Ventura impressions and for being my "FRIENDS," especially on Thursdays. Kendall-We'll watch 90210 over the phone while we're in college. Emily-Come visit me wherever I am and together we'll search for our dream man. I'll miss you all. To all my friends in East Brunswick-Good Luck in all you do. I'm sure we'll meet again some day.

Until then...Break the Rules, Go with your Heart, the World is Wide and ANYTHING...ANYTHING ...Can Happen.
LOVE ALWAYS, BETH (a.k.a. BELLA, BETHANY)

B.B, Papareineous, and Joe- Thankyou for leading me down the path of life, pushing to me to my best, yet never expecting anything more than I wanted to give. Believe it or not, I have been listening to all of the advice you offer and will take it with me always. Keep me laughing and know this: "I love you all more than yesterday but never as much as tommorrow."

Blake- There will never be a day when I don't think about the "what if's" in my life. I will always remember you for helping me become the woman I will one day be. Thanks Rachel, Liz, Debbie, Dafina, Amanda, Mark, Justin, Matt, and Alex. You guys are my best friends and I will love you forever and always.

Memories: C.C.E.P. and sweet 16 in England. College tour with Nate, Beth, and Tacy-there's nothing else I can remember. Stealing the walnut with B.P. Anything bad I've ever done w/A.H. Embarrassing moments w/D.D. The best of times, worst of times, all the times w/ T.C. and B.N. Prom w/ J.T. and C.M. Thanks guys! Midnight chats and business day w/ R.G. Frat Boys w/ K.H. Carmex w/ T.C. and "does he pant?" asks B.N. Lobster dinner w/ T.A., B.N., C. M., T. C., and D.D. J.J. and D.D don't mix well. Thanks Mr. Gidette, Mrs. Kranes, and Papa John- you three have helped me so much; Thankyou.

"We need time to dream, time to remember, and time to reach the infinite. Time to be." I have had some of the best times of my life in my 14 yrs here at RHSM, & I have my family, the faculty, & my friends to thank for that. Mom, You have given me the love, strength, & wisdom to go out & show this world a thing or two! I love you! Rick, The laughs will never end! Thanks for all the napkin-ball & ice wars, & fun times. I'll miss you both. Dad, I will forever be your one and only "Tigger." I love you. Debi, Thanks for showing me I have the ability to go out and make my dreams come true. Your love means so much to me. Jarrett, Andrew, Julianne, & David: You guys are the best bros. and sister! To imagine is everything so keep wishing on stars and you'll go far. Katherine- Squirrel- I love you like a sister. From RHSM pre-school to RHSM pre-college, we have shared so many special memories that I will cherish forever. Long live the 3 Musketeers! (Meg I love you!) KM+MS+TC= Best friends forever! Anna, From bananas in cubbies to Fast Cars, we've had great times. I love you so much! Never forget! Kathleen, Keep on dancing your way into everyone's heart as you did mine. Mark, You will always have a special place in my heart. 'Nuff said. The Group: Thanks for making me laugh even if I did just hit a sign, get a parking ticket, or get hit with a flying soap sculpture! Tony, The secret of the city lights is safe with me. See you on Extra, partner! Chris- Don Juan-If you ever get "confused" meet me in the backseat of Tony's car. 3rd period rocked! Bethany & Marissa Jude, What times we've shared from black BMWs to black Neons, I love you guys! "Memory is more indelible than ink." I love you all and thank you. I'll never forget the times we have all shared. Love, Tacy

- ① Tease your peers under the guise of inside jokes.
- ② Make sure to include pictures of yourself with your senior boyfriend when you were a sophomore. This is your last opportunity to remind everyone that you were so cool and mature that the senior guys paid attention to you.
- ③ Randomly insert "PEARL JAM" or "THE DEAD." You can't have a senior page unless you make it obvious that you listened to the cool music.
- ④ Draw bangs. These usually slip past the censors.
- ⑤ Perhaps write: "What a long strange trip it's been." No one ever does that.
- ⑥ Write weepy "thank you's" to your parents
- ⑦ Write so small that no one can read what you've written.

ODE TO ALIETTE

At 4 1/2 pounds you came petite, but you grew big enough to take on no small feat. . .

You have telemarked summits and biked the steep trail.
You have ascended the rock and sought wind for your sail.

You have scored with a ball
as well as your stick.
Juggling gear and agenda has certainly been a trick.

You have boarded the slopes,
plus bladed the ice.
And to your brother,
always found time to be nice.

You have penned lines of vision,
and penciled life into art.
Both aptly reflecting,
your genuine beauty of heart.

You have asked little of life,
of yourself demanded much;
grateful for everything,
always with nature in touch.

You have smiled through clouds, never once jumping ship. . .
maintaining your integrity,
your humility, and your grip.
You have been a luger, a JIRPER,
a portager with canoe.
You've balanced your life, Ali;
how. . . no one has a clue.

You've always climbed up,
soaring to many a peak.
Your spirit will be missed,
as new summits you seek!

A FINAL NOTE . . .
